

THE BARRE DAILY TIMES

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 27, 1910.

Entered at the post office at Barre as second-class matter.

Published every week-day afternoon. Subscriptions: One year, $3.00; one month, 25 cents; single copy, 1 cent.

Frank E. Langley, Publisher.

The average daily circulation of the Barre Daily Times for the week ending Saturday was copies, the largest paid circulation of any daily paper in this section.

5,605

With Perry also to entertain, Europe will have its hands full.

Taft has just scored perhaps the biggest success of his administration.

The Rutland Herald asks for a "clean-up" day for its city. How would a "take-off" day do? Or have you enough of them already in Rutland?

Who would have thought that any single person could add anything to the gaiety of Purse?

Will Theodore Roosevelt go to the fight as the sporting editor of The Outlook?—New York Sun.

Look out, or you will get a solar plexus yourself right from Brother Abbott.

About everybody, Democrats and all—except Bryan—seems to think that no better man than Hughes could be appointed to the United States supreme court bench; and Bryan is half a mind to join the procession.

Joining Barrett, of Vermont, gets a new place to manufacture peace for the South American republic, and the shop will have to work overtime to keep up with the demand to supply the waste in the scraggy little republics to the south of us. They are extremely prodigal of their peace down there.

It took courage for the family of Assistant District Attorney Moss of New York, the prosecutor who recently convicted Albert Weller, to take the condemned man's consoling into their home circle and do for an outcast of society what society would not do. That is an illustration of the brotherhood of man, which is rarely seen.

Max L. Powell is about the busiest man that Burlington boasts. Besides running a matrimonial information bureau for eloping couples, conducting an insurance business, practicing law, building hotels and such like, he is now running for state senator from the county of Chittenden. And what is more, he promises a peck of trouble for the man who is up against him. Powell is a human dynamo.

There is little wonder that a wrestler in a light-weight match at St. Louis sustained a broken neck. There is no more brutal sport indulged in at the present time, either for pleasure or for profit, than this wrestling, catch-as-catch-can style, for practically every method mean and bone-breaking is permitted. Prize fighting is a milder, more humane, and more professional wrestling mat. If there ever was an athletic contest which needed supervision, it is this brutal wrestling.

The proposal to raise Hughes to the position of chief justice immediately when the position becomes next vacant is not right. Strong man as he will prove to be, let him stand in line like the others and come to the honorable position by order of succession and not through any favoritism. Seniority on the bench should count for something, and with it should go the honor of being chief justice of the court. Those who have served faithfully for years deserve a better fate than to be thrust aside by a man who has just come to the bench and who is, therefore, without experience.

New York feels regret that its lieutenant governor, Horace White, will be forced upon the state as governor from the time when Governor Hughes resigns until January 1, the end of the term; and the regret is summed up in the following from the Springfield Republican: "One particularly regrettable consequence of Gov. Hughes' acceptance of the supreme court appointment is that it will give the governorship of the state for at least three months to Lieut. Gov. Horace White, who has fallen under a cloud by reason of certain doings in connection with an attempt to sell out control of an insurance company at Syracuse for the profit for an inside clique. It had been thought Gov. Hughes might refuse to accept such an appointment just to save the state a clouded governorship, if for no other reason." But here will be a fine chance for Lieut. Gov. White to live down any bad reputation which he may have gained heretofore in his official position. Three months is a short time in which to make much history, but he can conduct the office of governor entirely above reproach, and thus tend to refute the arguments now brought against him.

WALKING AS A PUNISHMENT FOR HAZING.

The new punishment for hazing, to be meted out by the superintendent at the West Point military academy, is not a punishment, for it imposes no great burden ship or sacrifice on the guilty ones. To be compelled to walk five hours a day is comparatively light exertion for a man who is supposed to be in good physical trim, as are the cadets at West Point. In fact, it is little more than should be required of every cadet, provided it did not rob their studies and other activities of time which rightfully belong to them. Thus, in beating about for a substitute for expulsion for the offense of hazing, the authorities have hit upon a scheme which is not severe at all, except as it exacts somewhat more rigorous discipline, and even at that it will be sufficient punishment for the infraction of the rules regarding the hazing of first-year men. Hazing an able-bodied cadet within reasonable limits is not a bad thing for the cadet, oftentimes; and those who indulge in the practice to only such an extent are not heinous offenders at all, and should not be dealt with in the same measure as those hazers who cruelly maltreat the newer arrivals at the academy. Those latter deserve expulsion and public reprimand; for the former the little daily walking stint may prove sufficient to tame their spirits and repress their mischievous natures. It certainly cannot be detrimental to their physiques, but on the contrary it should result in making them better fit physically for their life-work as officers in the United States military service.

Current Comment

Hughes and the Supreme Court.

To the performance of the high and exalted duties of a justice of the supreme court of the United States, Charles Evans Hughes will bring youth, vigor, a clear and acute mind, legal learning, a wide acquaintance with public affairs and the personal esteem of his fellow citizens, apart from political affiliation, and whatever differences of opinion there may be as to certain of his policies, there is no difference of opinion as to the honesty of his attitude on public questions.

It must be gratifying to the governor and to the president to find the selection received by regulars, insurgents and Democrats with a unanimity unusual in such cases. Even the West, which wanted the place, has no criticism to make. The state of New York once more supplies a judge to the highest tribunal, who is bound to take a conspicuous part in its deliberations and judgments.—New York Evening Sun.

United Kingdom's Net Emigration.

According to British board of trade returns, the net emigration from the United Kingdom to countries outside of Europe was as follows during the years 1908 and 1909:

	1908.	1909.
Canada	41,355	50,437
Australia	11,474	17,777
New Zealand	8,947	7,923
United States	33,431	54,304
South Africa	4,780	2,487
All other	602	5,308

Excess of Immigration.

These figures represent the difference between the number of persons of British origin, leaving the United Kingdom for the countries specified, and the number of persons of British origin returning to the United Kingdom from the countries named. Those going out in 1908 were fewer than those departing in 1909, while those returning in 1908 were more numerous in practically all cases than in 1909. This would seem to mean that industrial conditions were better in the United Kingdom relatively to the countries named in 1908 than in 1909; that depression following the panic of 1907 was severer in the United States and in the British colonies named than in England, and was certainly recovered from more speedily. The figures are of more interest in showing that Canada and the United States continue to be the favorite objective points of British emigration. British Australasia has comparatively small drawing power, while British South Africa does not seem to draw at all. It has actually lost ground in the two years, so far as migration between it and the mother country is concerned.—Springfield Republican.

Jingles and Jests

The Very Idea.

"I like grand opera music," chirped the chatty young lady.

"In." "But the chorus is seldom pretty."

"Um." "However, if I shut my eyes I can enjoy it."

"And if you shut your mouth the rest of us can enjoy it," murmured a voice in the rear.—Washington Herald.

As It May Be.

"People are not alike," remarked the moralizer. "What suits one may not please another."

"Right you are," rejoined the demolisher. "What is one man's automobile may be another man's juggernaut."—Chicago News.

Nothing Serious.

"Great guns! I've swallowed my collar button!" exclaimed the first actor in the dressing room.

"Here, I'll lend you one of mine," answered the other, with exaggerated indifference.—Buffalo Express.

Not Equals.

As one of the magnificent White Star steamships came steaming up New York harbor the other day a grimy coal barge floated immediately in front of her.

"Clear out of the way with that old rusted hulk!" shouted an officer on the bridge.

A round sunburned face appeared over the cabin hatchway. "Are ye the captain of that vessel?"

"No," answered the officer.

"Then spoke to yer equals. I'm the captain of this!" came from the barge.—The Housekeeper.

NORTHFIELD.

Marriage of Miss Minnie Talbot and Hiram Morrill Occurred Last Week.

The marriage of Miss Minnie T. Talbot and Hiram D. Morrill, both of this town, took place Wednesday morning, April 20, at St. John's parsonage, Rev. J. P. O'Neill performing the ceremony. They were attended by Mrs. John O'Brien of Burlington, Mass., a sister of the bride, and Cade's Slattery of the Theta Chi fraternity, of which the groom is a member. A wedding breakfast at the home of the bride followed the ceremony, after which Mr. and Mrs. Morrill left for New York City on a wedding trip. Mrs. Morrill has been a teacher in the graded school here since her graduation in 1901, and Mr. Morrill is foreman for the Osgood Granite company. They will reside here.

Albert A. Palmer of Waterbury and Gertrude M. Berns of this place were married Saturday at the Methodist parsonage by Rev. A. H. Webb.

John McCormick is making favorable recovery from a surgical operation at the Mary Fletcher hospital in Burlington, and Mrs. McCormick returned from there Sunday.

Several changes in real estate have been made lately, among them the purchase of Nelson Brown's Duck farm by Lewis Brassaw of Barre City for $2,800; Abram Dugrey has sold to Cora M. Pombar a place on the east hill for $700, while John E. Plunkett has sold his place on East street to H. P. Hall and has bought of Charles Dolan of St. Paul, Minn., another place on the same street.

Mrs. Susan H. Kent, aged 78 years, died last week at her home in St. Albans, and interment took place here Thursday in Elmwood cemetery, Rev. T. S. Oakford, pastor of St. Mary's Episcopal church, officiating. Mrs. Kent was the widow of the late Arvo Kent and both were residents of this town many years ago, going to St. Albans when the railroad headquarters were moved there. She was born in Danby, N. H., May 7, 1832, and her death occurred after a long illness.

The prompt discovery of a fire in the Northfield steam laundry last week Thursday evening averted a blaze which might have worked great damage. The fire caught from electric flatiron. The switch had been turned onto them when the power from the whole district was off and left on by mistake when the laundry was closed for the day. When the power came on, the side of the building caught fire where the flatiron touched it. An alarm called out the firemen, but water was thrown on the blaze by those nearby, and the firemen did not turn on a stream from the hose. The loss was small, being mostly to the building, where the partitions were smashed in order to get at the blaze.

Comet Won't Hurt Us.

Cambridge, Mass., April 27.—Although the end of the tail of Halley's comet may brush the earth about the 19th or 20th of May, Prof. O. C. Wendell of the Harvard university said yesterday that he did not look for any interference in electric wire or wireless communication. All government stations have been asked to look for disturbances about that time, but Professor Wendell believes such watching to be unnecessary.

The Power of Suggestion.

It was the reserve force stored up in the years of conquest and the habit of triumphing in whatever they undertook that gave such power to the Washingtons, the Lincolns, the Gladstones and the Disraelis, says Orion Swift Marden in Success Magazine.

It is a reserve power which we feel back of the words and between the lines of a powerful book; not what is actually in the printed words that impresses us most.

We are not so much affected by what an orator like Webster actually says, as we are by what he suggests; the latent power, the mighty reserve force that we feel he might just forth were the emergency great enough.

Gift from Fallistes.

Paris, April 27.—Yesterday afternoon, President Fallieres, through Commandant Bard, the officer of his military household, presented Col. Theodore Roosevelt a magnificent tapestry, the design of which is a copy of Goussier's famous painting, "Love Mounted on a Hippogriff." The tapestry was made at the celebrated government factory at Beauvais and involved several years' work. It is considered one of the handsomest pieces turned out by the factory in a generation.
